

2021 NBA Draft Prospects

The players below are some of my favorite prospects in the 2021 Draft based on their projected draft positions.

All charts and tables used in this project were made by me using Python. Player comparison/similarities are based on a function I made that compares players' play styles based on box score and advanced statistics.

All comparisons and similarity scores are based on play styles, not skills.
Height measurements are without shoes. Age is as of draft day.

Presented by  State Farm[®]

Jeremy Patak

Evan Mobley

2020-21 Season Stats (Per 40 Mins)

PTS	REB	AST	FG%	3P%	FT%	BLK	TOV
19.3	10.2	2.8	57.8	30.0	69.4	3.4	2.6

Mobley is truly one of the most unique prospects in NBA history. He is a skilled big man who has the potential to be an elite player on both ends of the court. Offensively, Mobley is a scoring threat inside of the 3P line. He excels at using his mobility to get around slower bigs, and is a great finisher around the rim. He is very effective screening in the pick and roll and can step out of the paint and hit mid-range jump shots. He doesn't have a consistent 3P shot yet, but has the potential to develop one. He can also handle the ball in the open floor. On the defensive end, he is extremely switchable. He is able to stay in front of perimeter players due to his outstanding mobility, agility, and coordination. He is also able to use his length, timing, and instincts as a great rim protector.

In most draft classes, Mobley is a #1 overall pick. He is still very thin and will need to bulk up, but his wide range of skills are unique for somebody his size. He has the makings of a franchise cornerstone in the NBA.

Height – 7'0"

Weight – 215 lbs.

Wingspan – 7'4"

Age (Birthday) – 20 (6/18/2001)

Position – Center

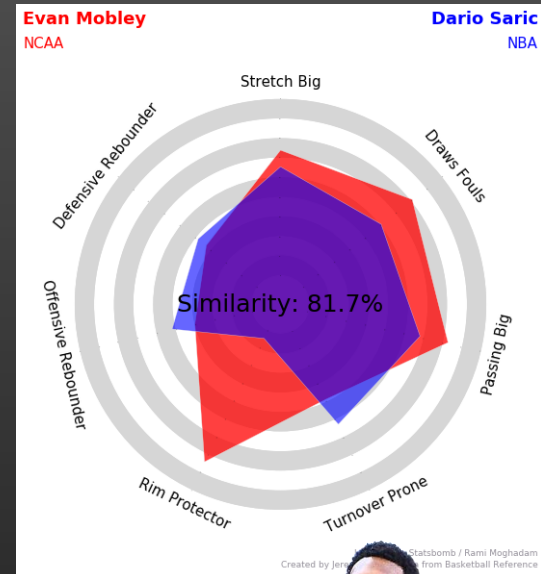

School – Southern California

Seasons in College – 1

Hometown – Murrieta, CA

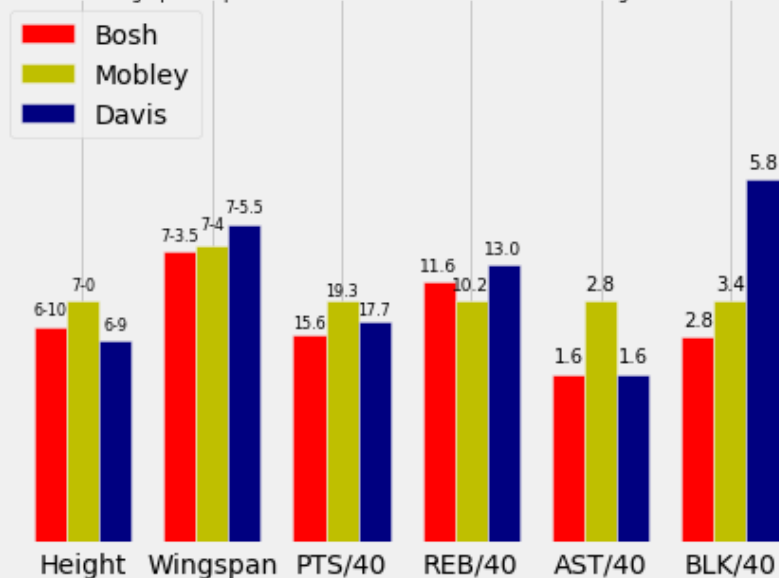

Draft Projection – Top 3 Pick

*Didn't attend combine

Mobley vs. Bosh and Davis

Evan Mobley has been compared to Chris Bosh and Anthony Davis leading up to the Draft. This graph compares his numbers with Davis and Bosh's college numbers

James Bouknight

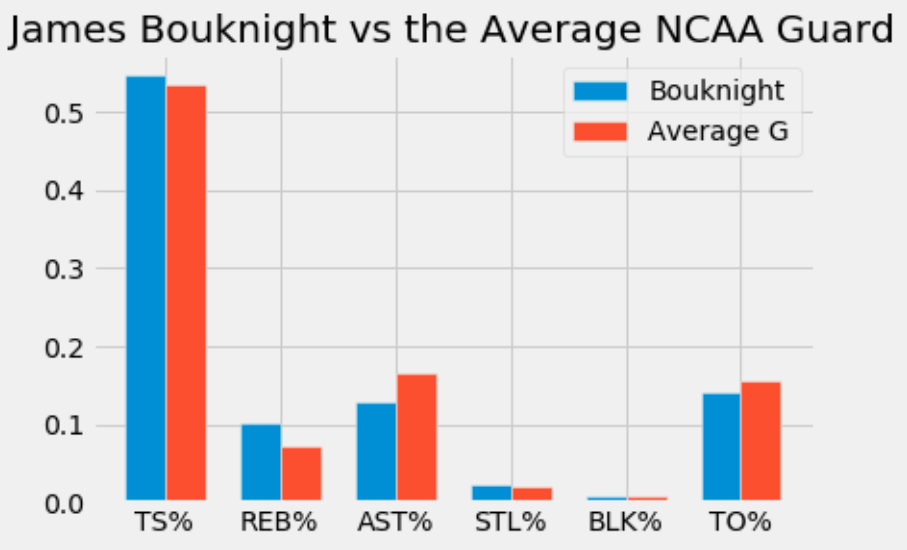

2020-21 Season Stats (Per 40 Mins)
PTS	REB	AST	FG%	3P%	eFG%	FT%	TOV
23.7	7.2	2.3	44.7	29.3	49.8	77.8	3.5

Bouknight is a athletic and shifty guard that can score from all 3-levels. He’s a crafty finisher around the rim that is very good in isolation situations. His shooting numbers weren’t good, but he took lots of difficult shots and got lots of defensive attention at UCONN. He reportedly shot the ball very well in the pre-draft process. He has very good ball handling skills and a wide variety of moves that allow him to create a shot for himself. However, he doesn’t create opportunities for teammates, and he needs the ball in his hands to be effective. Defensively, he’s a good on ball defender, and can guard the 1 through 3 spot due to his size and speed. Off-ball though, he tends to try and make the risky play, and often ends up out of position.

Bouknight is skilled and athletic enough to have an NBA career as a bench scorer at minimum, but if he’s able to develop his playmaking for others and his 3P shot, he could be an all-star caliber player.

Height – 6’3½”
Weight – 190 lbs.
Wingspan – 6’8¼”
Age (Birthday) – 20 (9/18/2000)
Position – SG
School – UCONN
Seasons in College – 2
Hometown – Brooklyn, NY
Draft Projection – Lottery Pick

Name	Similarity %
Evan Fournier	78.3
DAngelo Russell	78.2
Devonte Graham	77.7
Seth Curry	76.6

Corey Kispert

2020-21 Season Stats (Per 40 Mins)

PTS	REB	AST	FG%	3P%	eFG%	FT%	TOV
23.4	6.2	2.3	52.9	44.0	64.4	87.8	1.6

Kispert comes into the NBA with an elite NBA skill from day 1: his shooting. He's great on both spot up shots and shooting on the move. He utilizes screens very well to get open, and has a quick shot release. He is also able to counter opponents aggressive closeouts by dribble driving and hitting open teammates. He's got good size compared to many players just though of as spot up shooters, and that allows him to guard both Forward positions. He struggles to guard quicker players, but survives on the defensive end with his size, good physicality, and very good basketball IQ.

Kispert is considered one of the safest players in the draft, and will likely get significant minutes from day 1 because of his shooting. However, his upside is limited due to his limitations as a distributor and ball handler. He will likely have a solid career as a rotation player in the NBA, with a chance to be an average starter if he can survive defensively.

Height – 6'6"
Weight – 224 lbs.
Wingspan – 6'7"
Age (Birthday) – 22 (3/3/1999)
Position – SF
School – Gonzaga
Seasons in College – 4
Hometown – Edmonds, WA
Draft Projection – Mid-First Round

Where Do Corey Kisperts Points Come From?

Ayo Dosunmu

2020-21 Season Stats (Per 40 Mins)

PTS	REB	AST	FG%	3P%	eFG%	FT%	TOV
22.9	7.2	6.0	48.8	39.0	52.6	78.3	3.8

Dosunmu is a talented combo guard with desirable size for his position. He excels using his speed and ball handling skills in transition where he is able to score or find open teammates. In the halfcourt he is often able to get the ball in the paint off the dribble. He can finish at the rim with either hand, or find the open man after drawing multiple defenders. His 3P shooting was respectable but streaky in college, and something he will need to work on improving to reach his full potential. He is one of the best point of attack defenders in this draft class due to his athleticism and length. He is able to navigate through screens at a very high level. He is also a very versatile defender, and could be able to guard forwards after he gains some strength.

Dosunmu was a very successful college player who has the skills and body to play at the NBA level. If his shooting improves, his playmaking, scoring, and defense will allow him to be a solid rotational player, or possibly even a low-end starter.

Height – 6'3½"
Weight – 194 lbs.
Wingspan – 6'10¼"
Age (Birthday) – 21 (1/17/2000)
Position – Combo Guard
School – Illinois
Seasons in College – 3
Hometown – Chicago, IL

Draft Projection – Late 1st to Early 2nd

Neemias Queta

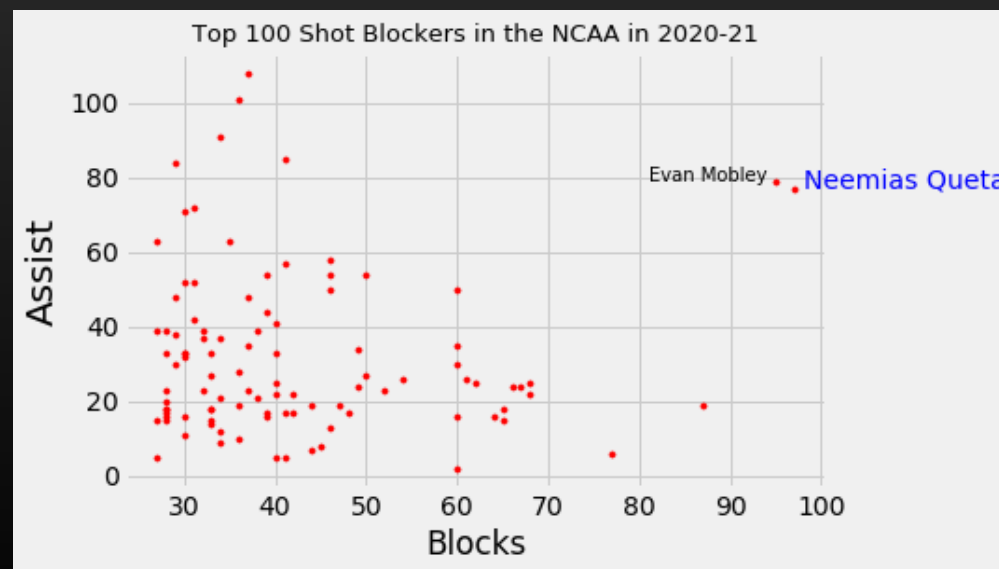

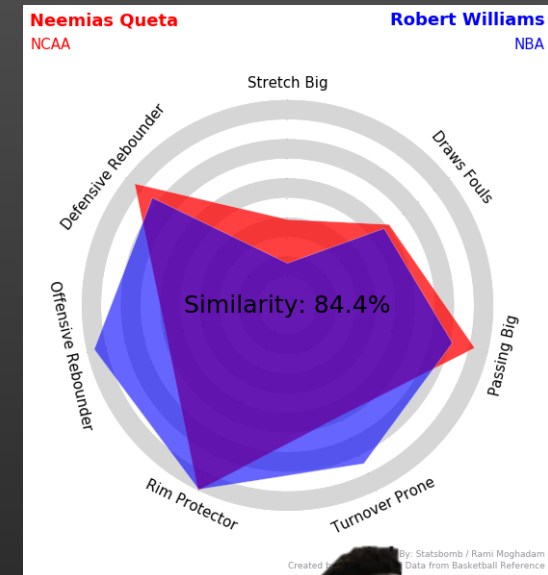

2020-21 Season Stats (Per 40 Mins)

PTS	REB	AST	FG%	3P%	FT%	BLK	TOV
19.9	13.5	3.5	55.9	0.0	70.7	4.5	3.2

Queta is rim protecting center with great size. He was the tallest player at the 2021 Combine, and also boasted the longest wingspan and tallest vertical reach. He uses these tools as an elite shot blocker. He led Division 1 in blocks and BLK% last season. He's a good rebounder who works hard on the glass. He plays with good effort and runs the floor well. However, his agility isn't good, and he will struggle to defend when switched on to guards. Most of his offensive college touches came in back to the basket post-ups. He was efficient there but won't play that role at the NBA level. He has good potential as a catch and finish offensive player due to his size and athleticism. He's a uniquely good passer for his size, but also struggles with turnovers when faced with pressure. He is a non-shooter right now, and likely won't become one at the NBA level.

Queta already has an NBA ready body and can become a good NBA rim protector who is able to make the right passes and make his free throws. However, he may still struggle due to poor switchability on defense.

Height – 6'11¼"
Weight – 248 lbs.
Wingspan – 7'4"
Age (Birthday) – 22 (7/13/1999)
Position – Center
School – Utah State
Seasons in College – 3
Hometown – Barreiro, Portugal
Draft Projection – Second Round

McKinley Wright IV

2020-21 Season Stats (Per 40 Mins)

PTS	REB	AST	FG%	3P%	eFG%	FT%	TOV
18.7	5.3	7.0	48.0	30.1	51.8	84.4	2.6

Wright is a quick and skilled point guard with great playmaking qualities. He's got good length, but is still undersized, even for the PG position. His best scoring threat is using his quickness to slash to the rim. He needs to improve his left-hand finishes. Posses a good floater. His jump shot is a weakness: He struggles to shoot over length off the dribble and is also an inconsistent spot-up shooter. He usually doesn't force passes and is good at limiting turnovers. He is an intense competitor and outstanding leader, and he carries that over to the defensive end of the floor as well. He is a pesky defender who is great on the ball. However, he's not a versatile defender because of his size, and will likely only be able to guard other lead guards.

Wright has a shot to be a backup point guard at the NBA level who can defend well, put pressure on the rim, and create for others. However, he really needs to improve his shooting to reach his potential.

Height – 5'11¼"
Weight – 192 lbs.
Wingspan – 6'5¼"
Age (Birthday) – 22 (10/25/1998)
Position – PG
School – Colorado
Seasons in College – 4
Hometown – North Robbinsdale, MN

Draft Projection – Late 2nd Round to Undrafted

Eugene Omoruyi

2020-21 Season Stats (Per 40 Mins)

PTS	REB	AST	FG%	3P%	FT%	STL	TOV
22.4	7.1	2.9	47.3	37.6	76.5	2.0	3.0

Omoruyi is a “do it all” type player that plays with tremendous energy and toughness. Strong frame with great wingspan. Developed a reliable 3P shot late in his college career, but still has room to grow. Played in the post a lot at Oregon and showed off outstanding footwork and a variety of effective post moves. Great at making passing reads, especially from the post. Good offensive rebounder. Strong defender who can guard either Forward position. Plays well through contact and willing charge taker. Eugene is the oldest player in this entire draft class but didn’t start playing basketball until his sophomore year of high school, and still has room to grow as a player.

I think he could make the best impact as a small-ball big. He won’t get drafted but will likely sign with a team for summer league and training camp. Could eventually become a rotational player at the NBA level as a 3-and-D forward with some versatility.

Height – 6’5¼”

Weight – 237 lbs.

Wingspan – 7’1¼”

Age (Birthday) – 24 (2/14/1997)

Position – SF

School(s) – Rutgers → Oregon

Seasons in College – 4 + 1 RS

Hometown – Rexdale, Ontario

Draft Projection – Undrafted

*GL Elite Camp
Measurements

Name	Similarity %
------	--------------

Mikal Bridges	88.7
---------------	------

Trevor Ariza	80.1
--------------	------

Cam Reddish	78.4
-------------	------

Maurice Harkless	78.1
------------------	------

Andrew Wiggins	76.8
----------------	------

